

Point Cards

Today, many stores offer customers point cards that they use when they make purchases. Customers can use the points they earn for discounts on future purchases. More and more stores are introducing point cards, and by doing so they help customers save money. The number of stores that offer point cards will probably increase in the future.

AB